Play street is a neighborhood festival during which the street is temporarily closed to vehicles. On this day, the street is transformed into a place where neighbours of all ages are free to come together and play in their favourite way. The goal is to get people outside and show them the potential of the public spaces that are near their homes. This time, we are developing a Play street program in partnership with various organizations. The organizations that are joining us are dedicated to promoting active mobility, outdoor play and community building. These organizations also help local governments to create environments for healthier and more prosperous childhoods. Come and meet everyone, get inspired or just have a chat! We look forward to seeing you!

Venue: Klobočnícka and Nedbalova street

MESTO PRE DETI

Mesto pre deti (City for Kids)

Play street (in Bratislava) is a neighborhood festival during which the street is temporarily closed to vehicles. On this day, the street is transformed into a place where neighbours of all ages can meet and play freely in the public space. The goal is to get people outside and show them the unseen potential of the public spaces that are near their home.

Qendra
Marrëdhënie
Relationship
Center

Qendra Marrëdhënie (Relationship Center)

Qendra Marrëdhënie is a non-profit urban design and research group based in Tirana, Albania. We help local governments build environments for healthier, thriving childhoods. In pursuit of better health outcomes for young children and their caregivers, we provide technical assistance and design services to local governments as well as to neighborhood institutions like parent councils, student governments, resident committees, and other associations organized around equity and the public provision of well-being.

Pěšky Městem

We are all born as pedestrians and it is our nature to move on foot. And because walking is normal, pedestrians are often forgotten. „Pěšky městem“ gives pedestrians a voice. They help provide safer environment for pedestrians and creates public spaces that invite people to walk or spend their time there. They involve other people and associations in the transformation of the city. They monitor the air quality in Prague and support the greening of its streets. They protect the rights of children and especially vulnerable adults within the framework of the OSF policy, to which we subscribe.

Škograd

Škograd is participatory action-research based collective from Belgrade (Serbia) committed to disentangling the structural discrimination against marginalised children of the urban periphery of Belgrade and beyond.

The team brings together experts from the fields of psychology, pedagogy, art, design, architecture, and urban studies. Through post-disciplinary work, we engage ourselves creatively with urban co-production practices with marginalised communities that manifest the potential to positively affect the quality of life in the city.

TU Munich, Chair of Urban Structure and Transport Planning

At the Chair of Urban Structure and Transport Planning, we address the following activities through our teaching, research and practice:

- exploring the drivers of change in individual mobility behavior through the development of integrated land-use and transport strategies for all transport modes across various spatial scales in metropolitan regions

- developing accessibility instruments and system modeling methods which reflect the spatial and temporal dynamics in order to design and assess sustainable mobility concepts
- contributing to improvements of planning instruments and governance processes in order to enable public and private stakeholders to be aware of the diverse impacts of their respective decisions.

We implement mobility solutions on-site, by developing sustainable policies, consulting public and private decision-makers, organizing conferences, and coordinating events and workshops as an unified platform to exchange ideas and information.

Street Experiments Tool (SET)

SET supports cities, organisations, and society to experiment with the change they want to see in their streets. They strongly believe that our streets should be multifunctional and flexible, promoting active lifestyles in order to create more liveable, sustainable and resilient cities. SET sees Street Experiments as a planning tool to offer cities quick, creative and cost-effective solutions to current mobility and public realm challenges to develop long-term visions.

Global Designing Cities Initiative

We are a team of designers, planners, and urban strategists committed to reimagining streets as places for people, shaping cities that are safe, healthy, accessible, and equitable for everyone. The strategies and best practices in our Global Street Design Guide are the foundation of our work, and they have been applied in cities across the globe, helping to update policies, build local capacity, implement and evaluate projects, and scale up impact.

Originally a program of NACTO, the Global Designing Cities Initiative (GDCI) was founded in 2014 by Janette Sadik-Khan, operating under the guidance of Director Skye Duncan.
